"And Gerbert, Knox, Satu and Domenico are determined to hunt down every clue they can to Diana's and Matthew's disappearance, and the secrets their allies are keeping from them." Edit January 8, 2021 (UK) January 9, 2021 (USA) Season 2 of A Discovery of Witches premiered on Friday January 8, 2021 in the UK on Sky One. It aired one day later on Saturday January 9, 2021 in the USA through Sundance Now and Shudder and ended on March 13, 2021.[1][2] Synopsis[1] Matthew and Diana are hiding in time in the fascinating and treacherous world of Elizabethan London. Here they must find a powerful witch teacher to help Diana control her magic and search for the elusive Book of Life. Matthew and Diana's romance faces a barrage of new threats; Diana's unleashed magic takes a dark and frightening turn, while Matthew struggles to re-inhabit the dangerous life he led over four centuries ago. They must overcome deep personal fears and jealousies, baring their darkest secrets to one another if they are to stay alive, stay together and find a way back to present day. While Matthew and Diana hide out in Elizabethan London, back in present day, Diana's beloved ants, Sarah and Em must take shelter with notorious witch hunter Ysabeau de Clermont at her ancestral home, Sept-Tours. Meanwhile, in Oxford, Marcus and Miriam take on Matthew's mantle to protect Demons Nathaniel and Sophie, whose pregnancy is advancing. And Gerbert, Knox, Satu and Domenico are determined to hunt down every clue they can to Diana's and Matthew's disappearance, and the secrets their allies are keeping from them.[1][1] Cast[1] Starring[1] Guest Starring[1] Episodes[2] Season 2 # Episode Summary UK Airdate USA Airdate Written By Directed By 2X01 Episode 1 (Season 2) In Madison, Satou, Knox and Gerbert arrive at the Bishop house to find that Matthew and Diana have disappeared. Which would be shown to fans between October 8-11, 2020 virtually via YouTube.[48] On November 16, 2020, Sundance Now, one of the channels in the U.S., where the series will air its second season, tweeted out that there was only two months until the Season 2 premiere.[49] On December 6, 2020, a teaser image for one of the sets in Season 2 was revealed.[50] On December 7, 2020, a a second teaser image of another one of the sets during season 2 was revealed through the show's official twitter account.[51] On December 8, 2020, Sky One released a poster for Season 2.[52] On December 9, 2020, AMC Plus promoted the new season of the show on their official Twitter Account.[53] On December 11, 2020, a promotional image Matthew Goode's look in Season 2 was released.[54] On this same day, Deborah Harkness also released another promotional image of Mathew Goode's wardrobe in Season 2.[55] Later that day, Deborah also released a second promotional image, this time one of Matthew and Teresa with their characters in Season 2.[56] On December 12, 2020, Tanya Moodie was confirmed to be back for Season 2.[5] On December 13, 2020, a BTS image of Matthew and Teresa filming some scenes in Elizabethan London was released.[57] On December 14, 2020, Deborah Harkness confirmed that the period interiors such as the Hart and Crown, Rudolf II's palace, and Sept-Tours were all built in the studio.[58] She also mentioned that designer James North and his team built the exteriors for The Blackfriars and a few interiors (like Kiri's tavern) into and about the shells that remained from the old farm outbuildings. This gave Elizabethan London texture, substance, and epic scale.[59] On this day as well, the series official Twitter account revealed that filming in 1590 is quite tricky, because they have to take the roofs off to fit the crane in.[60] On December 15, 2020, SkyTV released some behind the scene images of some of the props being used in Season 2.[61] In addition, it was revealed that the series will premiere on January 1, 2021 on MoviestarPlus in Spain.[62] On December 16, 2020, a BTS image of two characters in a boat was released.[63] On December 18, 2020, a BTS image of a mysterious cloaked figure on a boat was released.[64] On this same day, it was revealed that the UK's £500M pounds($665 million dollars) coronavirus production insurance is in talks with the government to extend the initiative so that shoots are covered up until June 2021, rather than the current cut off of February 2021. Among the series and movies whose potential extension would help is A Discovery of Watches.[65] On December 22, 2020, Shudder began promotion for the series, by releasing a trailer for its U.S. debut.[66] Similarly, on December 23, 2020, AMC Plus also began promotion of the second season for its U.S. debut.[67] On December 24, 2020, new promotional images of Teresa Palmer, Matthew Goode and Tom Hughes in their Elizabethan Outfits were released to the public.[68] On December 28,2020, Matthew Goode and Teresa Palmer reveals some caveats of information for what's to come in Season 2 for their characters.[69] Matthew Goode and Teresa Palmer both admitted to having some trouble readjusting to their characters after a 16-month break from set. Goode going as far as to say that for him, "it was such a long gap, that actually I had a lot of trepidation stepping back...I was like, 'I can't f*cking remember how I did it... And then also, certainly for my character, it's a very different [Season], really, because he regresses into his past, and psychologically that really changes him. So I think that's one of the reasons why I felt a little bit awkward in the beginning." Teresa Palmer also admitted that, "Matthew regresses into his past - and psychologically that changes him, he says.[72] There is however plenty of supernatural warfare on show, alongside some nascent 'blood rage' (a vampire's insatiable urge to hunt). The burgeoning romance between our hero and heroine continues to flourish though, albeit with bumps in the road on the way. Thus, they will have some things to work over come", says Matthew.[72] Teresa Palmer teased that, "Diana's getting to know him again in this era. When [they] go back in time, the Matthew Clairmont she knows seems really different. He shifts into this darker version. It feels like he's a totally different Matthew at times and this really throws her." [72] Season 2 will also see Diana start to embrace her witch side, which for so long she wanted to ignore. Palmer admits that Diana still has a very long way to go and she's certainly not in control of her magic, but she has to embrace who she is and delve further into it. Which means that viewers can expect lots of captivating magic sequences. One of her favorites being sequences like one where she's looking at someone's shoe with a snake embroidered on it and she brings the snake out of the shoe, a live snake. All because slowly Diana comes to the realization that part of one of her gifts is she can bring life into things.[72] Since the majority of the action in Season 2 takes place in 1590 this has meant that the cast had to deal with the challenges of being in a full Tudor costume, a particular issue for Teresa who was breastfeeding her daughter Poet during filming. This meant that she had to have front-opening corsets.[72] The Tudor setting also enables the introduction of characters from history, including real-life Elizabethan playwright Christopher Marlowe (who is being portrayed by: Tom Hughes) alongside the then 57-year-old Queen Elizabeth (portrayed by: Barbara Marten), whose relatively advanced years do not preclude her from flirting with Clairmont. Goode jokes that, "I'm having it written into all [Matthew's] main scenes that women find him attractive." [72] But in regards to the Queen Elizabeth and Matthew Clairmont relationship, Goode mentioned that, "Their relationship is quite touching actually, even when she's being ghostly because there's something deeper at the centre of it all. He worked for her father, Henry VIII, and so he was a confidant who probably helped her while she was growing up. I would imagine there was a frisson while she was a teenager and then a young queen, but he does love her very much and respects her hugely".[72] Clairmont's nephew Gallowglass, is described as a towering warrior fierce in battle but unafraid of revealing his soft heart around family. Steven Cree teased that his character quickly accepts Diana as part of his extended family, becoming one of only a handful of people she trusts. When pressed for more information about Gallowglass, he added that, "He's incredibly loyal to Matthew and the Clairmonts despite perhaps not necessarily always agreeing with everyone, particularly Matthew's father Philippe [portrayed by: James Purefoy]." Cree also said that Gallowglass is, "quite bombastic yet he can be quite sensitive as well - but when it comes to the crunch he's a fierce warrior who will destroy anyone or anything that gets in Matthew's way. Because of his loyalty to Matthew, he then becomes incredibly protective of Diana as well".[72] Knowing how popular Gallowglass is to the fans of the books, Cree admitted to knowing the high expectations for his characters and hopes to do it justice.[72] On January 4, 2021, it was revealed how two years ago (in 2018), AMC Networks executives were impressed with the performance of the first season of a low-profile genre series co-produced in the U.K. with Comcast's Sky that premiered on AMC's arthouse-y streaming service Sundance Now in January 2019. They went onto say that "A Discovery of Witches" has become the little engine that could for the streaming service that has been around in one form or another since 2014. Which in turn caused AMC to focus and invest more in SVOD, after how good the series did for them.[73] On January 7, 2021, James Purefoy discussed how his close friend Matthew Goode campaigned to get him cast as Philippe. "Purefoy admits playing Goode's father was terrible for his vanity, but ultimately, their characters are both centuries old, so that softened the blow. Mostly, performing with Goode made him up his game."
